Dear Mr JONES,

Apology for my behavior

I have been giving you a tough time in class recently.

I am deeply sorry about me acting abnormally. There have been a lot of things stressing me out and I do not mean to let my stress affect how I behave with others. I will try my best to keep my composure and not say stupid things in the future.

I have lots of respect for you, because you don't let people take advantage of you and like to do things on your terms. A lot of students find this trait very respectful, and respect you more than they do other teachers. I believe in recent days this respect hasn't been resonating out from me too well. Hopefully, with the remaining time left in this year, I will be able to make it up.
